Reduction in Office Establishments.

1 In connection with the question of effecting economies in the Comptroller's Office, it has been held that further enquiry should be made ~~for reducing staff~~ as to whether substantial reduction in staff is not possible by introducing suitable changes in methods of work, the latest procedure in vogue in British Indian Account Offices being also studied.

2 While I consider that an enquiry of this kind will certainly lead to some useful result I venture to think that the investigation may be made a little more comprehensive so as to include the method of recruitment in the office and suitable changes in it in order to secure the object in view.

3 In this connection I beg to invite reference to the following recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee:-

" We think that with careful [redacted] of men and proper [redacted] it should be quite possible to [redacted] aggregate strength of ministerial establishments in most offices in the State by about 10 per cent on the average. ..... The actual reduction feasible in each office is best determined as the result of a detailed examination of the nature and volume of work by an experienced special officer who will presumably be instructed to take into account and make due allowances for retrenchments that may have already been effected in recent years.

4 I think that this recommendation of the Committee may be accepted and the question of appointing a special officer as early as possible for conducting the necessary investigation may be considered. The Comptroller's Office and the Secretariat are the two biggest offices in the State and these two offices may be taken up in the first instance for a detailed examination.

5 The problem is one of importance and its solution is not also free from practical difficulties. To achieve the best results it would be necessary to associate with the Special Officer one or two additional officers, well conversant with the departmental technique in the investigation of pertaining to individual offices, as and when required.

6. The question may perhaps be informally discussed in tomorrow's Council.

7 This may be considered at the next Meeting of Council. I am not aware of a Committee of officers is the best agency for investigating this matter - Is it not possible for one of the Senior officers of the two offices to examine the question and suggest reduction of work and of staff? Now 21/10

NOTE—Contn. Sheet.

Submitted to His Highness.

I beg to invite reference to paras 7 and 8 of my Submission Note dated 15th October 1931 in which certain proposals for retrenchment of expenditure in the Account Department were submitted for His Highness's approval, and it was stated that the possibility of effecting further savings by a reduction in the staff of the Comptroller's Office by simplification of work would be investigated.

2. The Financial Secretary has suggested that a Special Officer might be appointed to examine in detail the nature and volume of work in the Comptroller's Office and the Secretariat and to submit proposals in regard to the simplification of work and reduction of ministerial staff in these two offices.

3. The matter was considered in Council on 16th February 1932 when the following resolution was recorded:-

"Mr. B.T. Kesava Iyengar may be entrusted with this work when his services can be spared for it."

4. The above recommendation may be graciously approved.

Submitted to His Highness.

Page 8 of Office Notes

I beg to invite kind reference to my Submission Note dated 22nd February 1932 and His Highness's orders thereon, approving of the proposals -

(i) to appoint a Special Officer to examine in detail the nature and volume of work in the Comptroller's Office and the Secretariat, and submit proposals in regard to the simplification of work and reduction of staff in these two offices, and

(ii) to entrust this work to Mr. B.T. Kesava Iyengar when his services could be spared for the purpose.

2. It has not been possible so far to spare Mr. B.T. Kesava Iyengar for the work referred to above. In the meanwhile, Rajasevaparayana Mr. B. Srinivasa Iyengar, Financial Secretary to Government, is due to retire from service from 1st July 1932, and in view of his intimate acquaintance with the work of the two offices and his varied experience as Inspector of Office Systems, he would be the best officer that could be had for this special work. The Members of Council and I therefore recommend that Mr. B. Srinivasa Iyengar may be entrusted with the work from 1st July 1932. It may take about two months to complete the work and during this period Mr. B. Srinivasa Iyengar may be treated as on special duty and allowed the same rate of pay he was drawing as Financial Secretary. His retirement may take effect from date of completion of this work.
